Property Description

SANCTUARY LA GAMBA — Rainforest & Water Sanctuary | La Gamba, Golfito, Costa Rica 46.7 Acres | Fully Titled | Some properties are real estate. This one is a living legacy. Sanctuary La Gamba is a 46.7-acre rainforest and water sanctuary established in 2007, situated in the COBIGA Biological Corridor of southern Costa Rica's South Pacific region. Nestled between Piedras Blancas National Park (just 2.5 miles away) and the Golfito National Wildlife Refuge, the property sits at the heart of one of the most biodiverse ecosystems on Earth, with 0.4 miles of pristine river frontage along the protected Quebrada Bolsa reserve. Of the total area, 33 acres are dedicated to tropical rainforest conservation under Costa Rica's National Program of Ecological Services for Water Protection, generating environmental services income while preserving irreplaceable habitat. The remaining 13.7 acres include established building areas, ornamental gardens, and working organic agriculture developed under permaculture principles.
