Property Description

This titled 64,599 m² (6.46 hectares) development parcel is located in Jacó, Garabito, Puntarenas, Costa Rica, within one of the most established and active growth corridors on the Central Pacific coast. Positioned with direct public road frontage, the property offers scale and accessibility that are increasingly difficult to find in the Jacó and Herradura market. Its location places it within close proximity to established residential communities, tourism infrastructure, and key coastal destinations, making it well suited for a variety of development strategies. The property benefits from a municipal land use designation that allows commercial, residential, and tourism development. This level of flexibility supports multiple potential project directions, including residential communities, hospitality concepts, or mixed-use environments that combine service, lodging, and residential components.
