Property Description

This modern newly built residence is located in Miravalles, Pérez Zeledón, an area known for its fresh mountain air, lush green surroundings, and a pleasant year-round climate. Life here is defined by balance: cooler nights, warm days, and a strong connection to nature, while still enjoying comfort and accessibility. Designed and constructed by an experienced engineering team with over 25 years of experience, the home is built entirely from concrete block and steel, offering durability, stability, and a naturally cool interior climate. The property provides approximately 129 square meters of interior living space and nearly 170 square meters of covered areas, including two spacious bedrooms and two large bathrooms. The master suite features a walk-in closet and dual sinks. Large windows and glass sliding doors fill the home with natural light and create a seamless connection between indoor and outdoor living.
