Property Description

Situated between the Río Chirripó and Río Chucuyo, this newly built home offers a sense of place that is difficult to replicate. Set on 1.3 hectares of land, approximately 13,000 m² or 139,932 ft², the property lies in a quiet pocket of Chimirol de Rivas where the landscape opens into broad terraces, soft light, and the first hints of the high mountains above Canaan. The setting feels private without being remote, and the sound of flowing water is present throughout the day as both rivers trace the edges of the land. Completed recently, the residence was designed for comfort and ease of use, with generous interior proportions and a clean, modern layout. The home sits slightly elevated above the terrain, allowing natural airflow and long views toward the surrounding trees and open fields. Its turn-key condition allows a new owner to settle in immediately while leaving room for future vision.
