Property Description

If you're a nature lover, you will love this property. It's surrounded by jungle, birds, animals, and room for three more buildings. The deck off the front of the home soars over a beautiful forest with little peeks through the trees clear out to the ocean, and the noise of the cascading river is a pleasant companion. The idea behind the design was to have three houses of the same design, with one up at the end of the driveway and then two down in the jungle from there. The first house was finished, the foundation for the second house was built, and the third house wasn't started. All are completely immersed in jungle. Once could have a cantilevered deck almost beside the river. Trails connect the building sites and the river. The Cortezal River is a year around cascading river of swimming holes and small waterfalls. It's a fun place for you and your guests to swim, picnic and read a good book.
