Property Description

Casa Paraíso del Trópico is an architecturally significant estate in Turrúcares, Costa Rica, offering a rare combination of privacy, natural beauty, and thoughtfully designed living spaces. Set within approximately 7,000 m² of lush grounds, the property features mature gardens, a picturesque creek, expansive social areas, a guest house, and exceptional outdoor amenities, creating an environment that feels both refined and deeply connected to nature. Located within an exclusive estate community in Turrúcares, the property enjoys a setting that has become increasingly sought after by those who value tranquility while maintaining convenient access to key destinations throughout Costa Rica. Its proximity to Juan Santamaría International Airport and Route 27 allows for efficient connections to Escazú, Santa Ana, the Pacific Coast, and major business centers. Designed by acclaimed architect Katia Marten, the main residence showcases timeless architectural principles, generous proportions, and quality finishes throughout.
