Property Description

Location is an Understatement Punta Encanto is one of a kind property not only for Costa Rica but in the world. Located in the Osa Peninsula and surrounded by the Golfito Natural Reserve and the Golfo Dulce. The Osa Peninsula and national refuge are known as the Darwin Superhighway. All four species of Costa Rican monkeys live here, plus Agouties, Coaties, Raccoons, Collared Peccaries, Pacas, anteaters, and the wild cats, bobcats, panthers and the jaguarundis! There are also various species of snakes, frogs, butterflies, and bats. Nearly 150 species of birds have been identified at Golfito National Wildlife Refuge, including Macaws (Scarlet Macaw), Parrots, Brown Pelicans, Ibis, Herons, Owls, Barn Owls, and a number of other birds with limited distribution, such as Yellow-billed Cotinga, Orange-collared Manakin, Golden-naped Woodpecker, Riverside Wren and Baird's Trogon. The refuge also covers part of Golfo Dulce, where ghost crabs can be seen along the beach.
