Property Description

This three bedroom home overlooking the city of San Isidro de El General offers elegant living in a near-perfect Costa Rica micro-climate. The property is located just out of town off the Pan American highway, going towards San Jose, in the area called San Rafael Norte. The elevation is a cool 1,100 meters (3,600 feet). And the views of the valley and the city lights of San Isidro de El General are spectacular, to put it mildly. The property is well-built concrete block construction. It features a large outdoor living area under the roof that leads to a spacious kitchen, elegant dining area, and entertainment room. Also located on the first floor are the two guest bedrooms, sharing a full-bath and then another half bath in the hallway. The upstairs is where the large master bedroom with its own balcony, featuring the best views of the property. There is also a large en-suite bathroom. Underneath the outdoor living area is a two-car garage and barbecue area with an old-fashioned brick oven.
